- All task forces need to promote community's ownership towards facilities and infrastructures.

2. Welcome and Scene Setting

Mr Rakesh Kumar Niraj, Training Officer of DIPECHO project, Sahbhagi Sikshan Kendra (SSK) welcomed the delegates and introduced the event. He briefed that we gather to share draft approaches of developed training modules. SSK expect to finalize the training approaches and materials for five task forces in the stakeholder workshop. He informed delegates that to achieve the expected outcome the workshop has three presentations, (first briefs on the project, second discusses process of module development and the third presentation discusses the contents and specification of each training modules) open dialogue sessions and consensus-building on the final draft of training modules.

3. Process of finalization of the training modules

3.1. Presentation 1: Brief on the project

Mr. Santosh Singh, Assistant Project Manager of DIPECHO project, SSK gave a presentation addressing the approach adopted by SSK towards achieving mainstreaming of disaster risk management into local development processes. He outlined the major findings of need assessment, three result areas of the project, their indicators and activities being undertaken in each result area. Mr. Santosh's slides are included in appendix C later.

Open dialogue

Mr Dhruva Kumar of Panchsheel Development Trust asked about difference between Sahbhagi's DRR plan and UNDP's plan. Mr Santosh of SSK responded that in SSK's plan, involvement and capacity building of the community was focus while other mainly focuses on information collection.

3.2. Presentation 2: Process of module development

Ms Mahima Tewari, Programme Associate of DIPECHO project, SSK gave a presentation highlighting the different stages of module development, its structure and specifications. Different stages of module development were collection of exiting materials, study and review of existing approaches and materials, training need assessment (TNA) and then development of modules on five subjects a) Early Warning b) Search & Rescue c) First Aid d) Water, sanitation and Hygiene and, e) Social Inclusion, followed by field testing of all five modules. Addressing specifications she told all modules are flooding specific, language is simple and easy Hindi, basic objective of the modules is to create awareness and essential skills in the community. The modules are equally useful for community based task forces and Master Trainers for training of village task forces, because written text is supported by illustrations for semi literate and neo-literate while first part of the module discusses what preparations trainer needs to do before imparting training. Each training module also clearly states roles and responsibilities for the task force. She also discussed the structure of training modules. Ms. Mahima Tewari's slides are included in appendix C later.

Open dialogue

One of the delegates raised question about the sustainability of task forces. Ms. Mahima answered that in eight panchayats of Kaiserganj and Jarwal block of Bahraich district, where SSK is directly intervening hamlet wise 'Hamlet Disaster Management Committees' (HDMC) has been created and task force members has been selected from HDMCs. There is a provision of regular meetings of HDMCs and task forces for updates. SSK will provide trainings and hand holding support to CBDMC based task forces.

3.3. Presentation 3: Presentation of all the five training modules

Ms Priyanka Tandon, Programme Associate of DIPECHO project, SSK gave a presentation highlighting subject wise content and approach behind selecting and leaving the topics in the module.

Early Warning training module: No information can be found in Hindi. The module is based on internal study report prepared by SSK on exiting early warning systems (EWS) and traditional practices of communities and a few national and international papers on existing early warning systems. The module covers importance of EWS, four basic elements for people centered EWS, existing traditional and government EWS in Bahraich district, gaps in existing EWS, solutions for improving EWS, effective communication and its importance in early warning and roles and responsibilities of early warning task force.

Search and Rescue training module: In the context of activities for result 3, ADRA Germany and Malteser International agreed to closely coordination and collaboration, based on an established working relationship under the umbrella of "Germany's Relief Coalition/ Aktion Deutschland Hilft"(ADH) thus the module is based on inputs provided by ARDA, Bihar. The topics promoting community's knowledge and attitude change are covered in day-one training, while day-two training focuses on skills. During DRR planning it was found that rescue of livestock is one of major concerns of the community so the topic was included in the module. Under roles and responsibilities of search and rescue task force, social inclusion has been kept in mind.

First Aid training module: The subject is wide enough; there are lots of materials available also. SSK's module is flood specific and health concerns which came out during DDR planning are included as topic like Wounds, Bleeding, poisonous Insect and Snake Bites, Drowning, Suffocation, Fracture, Electric Shock, Shock covered under session 'First Aid for various Problems of Human Beings' while under session 'Skills and Know-how a First-aider must exhibit' topics like Bandages, Knots, Arm Slings, Splints, Stretchers, Recovery Position and Transportation of an injured Person are covered.

Water, Sanitation and Hygiene training module: The module is also based on material provided by ADRA, Bihar and information available on Internet. As the issue is related to day to day life so topics are covered under sessions 'Personal Hygiene', 'Environmental Sanitation', 'Clean and Pure Water’ and ‘Common Diseases during flood and their control’. Roles and responsibilities of the task force are divided into three sub-heads before, during and after flood.

Social Inclusion training module: The subject is cross-cutting and the module is developed by SSK’s technical support UNNATI, Ahmedabad. Exercises and games are included in the module to make participants understand complex subjects ‘Perceptions about gender, caste, class, religion, disability, age’, ‘Understanding social exclusion and vulnerability’, ‘Socially excluded groups in disaster situation’, ‘Making Vulnerability-Capacity Assessment inclusive’ and ‘Strategies for promoting social inclusion’.

Ms. Priyanka Tandon’s slides are included in appendix C later.

3.4. Open Dialogue and consensus-building on final draft of the training modules

After the presentations there was a session of open dialogue. The delegates themselves suggested taking modules one by one for discussion. Before taking up first module a suggestion came to develop a training modules to sensitize government officials on the issue of disaster management and community needs training on ‘nutrition, ‘how to save personal resources’ and ‘livelihood’. In general the modules were appreciated. The participants found them knowledgeable and useful.

- On the early warning module was defined as creative approach. A recommendation came was to include a topic of ‘how to do SMS in Hindi’. Mr. B.N. Dash, Early Warning Officer of DIPECHO project, SSK responded that literacy rate is very low in the area we are working so, the technical set-up which will be established will give voice-SMS.
- On the search & rescue module a recommendation was that the task force should be sensitive towards social inclusion and have good relation with First Aid task force. Mr Rakesh Kr, Niraj, Training Officer of DIPECHO project, SSK told that both points are covered under the roles and responsibilities of the search & rescue task force.
- On the first aid module was found very practical by participants. Two suggestions came that were to add chapters on first aid for livestock and trauma counseling.
- On the water, sanitation and hygiene module a suggestion was that task force should sensitize community not to built sock pit latrines near hand-pumps.
- On the social inclusion module the suggestion came was also related to the roles and responsibilities of the task force. The task force should gather detail information about the vulnerable groups in their hamlets / panchayats. The delegates were informed that social module have a session namely ‘Making Vulnerability-Capacity Assessment inclusive’ on it.

A challenge we faced was, most of the suggestions and recommendations came were focused on 'what members of task force should do' and highlighting needs of the community. Above were the several suggestions. All major suggestions are included under 'recommendations' topic.

4. Recommendations

- Dialogue between government official and the community needed. Government officials need to be sensitized on the disaster management. Husbands of Ahata and Naiserganj pradhans shared their experiences highlighting insensitive of government officials. Mr Dhruva Kumar of Panchsheel Development Trust also supported community's point of view.
